Report from the Chair:

Thousands of dedicated volunteers throughout the state serve on three hundred and thirty-five Local Arts Lottery Councils (LALCs), responsible for choosing projects that will best serve their communities. As you read this report and learn of some of the diversity of activities which are stimulated and sponsored by these committed individuals, I am sure that you will be as impressed as I am with the quality of their service.

There are more than twenty-seven hundred members appointed by their chief municipal officials. LALCs establish priorities based on the cultural interests and needs of their own communities, in accordance with general guidelines developed by the Massachusetts Arts Lottery Council (MALC).

MALC is a board of five private volunteer citizens who are appointed by the Governor for five-year terms. They come from different parts of the state and are responsible for creating and interpreting guidelines for the use of arts lottery funds, reviewing locally-approved applications for compliance with state guidelines and statutes, certifying payments to municipalities, and overseeing actual use of the funds by local arts lottery councils.

During this decade, Massachusetts had the highest per-capita state funding for the arts in the country. Providing aid to the arts had a significant impact on the state economy and, even more importantly, on the lives of our citizens wherever they live. We salute our artists, actors, dancers, humanists for contributing to a rich and joyful life. We congratulate and thank the volunteers who spend countless hours bringing the creative and inspiring work of these artists to all of our people.

Letter from the Director:

This is the first annual report of the MALC and in all probability will be the last. The future holds a different configuration for the Council though the Arts Lottery Program will continue unchanged. As we head toward the tenth anniversary of the Program, it has accomplished significant artistic and humanistic projects.

Fiscal 1989 was a year of stability for the Council and the staff. Experienced liaisons and central-office staff decided to begin a long-needed project, the orientation handbook for local arts lottery council members. The relocation of the MALC office from the State House to 600 Washington Street meant that the distribution process could be computerized and the Program was brought into the technological age. The lobby has been developed into a small gallery for exhibitions of work by arts lottery grant recipients where MALC hosted public exhibits from the Westfield and Worcester Arts Lottery Councils during this year.

This report looks backwards, while we are energetically looking forward. It is surely the experience of the past, however, that creates that energy and enthusiasm. Thank you for your interest in the Arts Lottery Programs.

THE ARTS LOTTERY PROGRAM

The Massachusetts Arts Lottery Council (MALC) was established by the state legislature in 1979 to provide funding for the arts in every municipality in the Commonwealth. The Council's mission was to stimulate and encourage the arts within cities and towns by administering the distribution of funds raised through an arts lottery game. Local arts lottery councils (LALCs) were formed in each city and town under the guidance of the Council.

The Arts Lottery is a unique program that provides support for community arts without dependence upon tax dollars. The state has appropriated five million dollars annually from revenues of the Megabucks game which is distributed by the MALC twice each year to local councils. Local allocations are devised by formula based on population and community need.

Since 1986, program funding has been four million dollars for Arts Lottery Grants and one million dollars for the Performing Arts Student Series. This amount was allocated to 335 Local Arts Lottery Councils (LALCs). The smallest LALCs receive a minimum of $1500.00 annually, and the largest, Boston, received $337,351.

Distribution of funds occurs during the fall and spring. Because several LALCs had requested during previous funding cycles that their funds be held over, the actual distribution for fiscal year 1989 was $4,200,946. This amount was used by 333 LALCS to fund arts and humanities projects in their respective communities. North Brookfield requested that their funds be held over for both cycles and Avon did not apply for funds.

A new option was introduced to LALC's during this year. Local councils could elect to grant their funds only one time per year if they wished. This option relieved volunteer members from some administrative burdens. The non-granting cycle was used to plan, recruit members and to make outreach efforts to attract new applicants. Six councils used the one-cycle option: Chatham, Plympton, Essex, Somerville, New Marlborough, and Yarmouth

The MALC received 5,355 applications for Arts Lottery Grants during fiscal year 1989. Beginning in late April and October, LALCs forwarded to the central office the applications which they approved together with summaries of their decisions for the Fall 1988 and Spring 1989 cycles. MALC, staff and liaisons reviewed these reports and applications. This review, required by State law, checks applications for compliance with an extensive set of guidelines established in 1980 and revised in 1985.

By the end of December 1988 and June 1989, most LALCs were informed about MALC decisions. MALC's goal was to expedite the payment of distribution monies to the LALCs as soon as possible. On December 6, MALC review was completed and checks were certified for 84 towns by December 27, 1988. On June 7, the review meeting was held and by June 30, 1989 checks were certified for 106 towns. The time for administration of the distribution cycle was reduced by a month.

The MALC's strong support of local decision-making is reflected in the high number of approved arts lottery applications (about 95%). Most disapproved applications cluster around two specific guidelines. Arts lottery funds may not be used to substitute for the existing responsibility of public agencies. Programs and services for public schools and libraries are encouraged, but certain projects (1.3%), are deemed as being their ordinary responsibility and the MALC disapproved of such applications.

The other guideline frequently cited concerns the Council's definition of the Arts and Humanities. Over many cycles this definition has been fine-tuned and projects dealing with science as the primary focus or emphasis, as well as those which seem to emphasize entertainment rather than high quality artistic and creative content (2.1%) are disapproved.

A priority for this year was to streamline the distribution process. Intensive work in the design of computer programs, testing, evaluation, and fine-tuning resulted in the ability to furnish complete analyses of applications and reports on funding.

By analyzing distribution data, now computer accessible, staff was able to identify those LALCs which had difficulty implementing MALC requirements. Staff and regional liaisons worked closely with these LALCs and helped them develop strategies based on the unique needs of their communities. Reports, compiled through the computer, concerning Arts Lottery funding programs were furnished legislators for each city/town in their districts.

In order to better serve the needs of small, traditionally underserved communities, MALC has pursued through legislation, an increase in the minimum allocation for LALCs. Under the sponsorship of Representative Kenneth Lemanski and Representative Nicholas Paleologos a bill was filed which would raise Arts Lottery program funding by four hundred thousand dollars.

This amount would allow all local councils to receive a minimum allocation of three thousand dollars each year while maintaining the present level of funding for other LALCs. This bill received a favorable report from the Committee on Education, the Arts and Humanities.

Also the bill would permanently established the PASS program allowing applicants to make long-range plans. Because there is a great deal of support and popularity for this program throughout the state, the Council would like to stabilize it and offer LALCs greater flexibility in administering it.

The MALC is also in the process of discussing collaborations with other cultural institutions, including the Massachusetts Council on the Arts and Humanities, the New England Foundation for the Arts, the Cultural Education Collaborative, and the Artists Foundation. These agencies offer a wide range of services. Ways in which we could work together to more efficiently and effectively serve the public are being explored.

PERFORMING ARTS STUDENT SERIES (PASS)

PASS was established by the legislature in 1986 to provide funds for Massachusetts school children, grades Kindergarten through twelve, to attend live performing arts events. PASS funds, are distributed in the same manner as other Arts Lottery grants, through allocations to LALCs. The MALC provides a roster of over 300 participating performing arts organizations.

The continuing growth and success of the PASS program is evidenced by the increasing number of LALCs using all of their PASS allocation, and by an ever increasing number of performing artists and performing arts organizations interested in becoming part of the program. Funding for PASS continued at one million dollars for fiscal year 1989. The smallest towns receive a minimum of five hundred dollars, and the largest, Boston, received $78,077.

A few communities had requested that their PASS funds from previous cycles be held over for this year. Therefore 311 out of 335 LALCs received a total of $1,009,683 which funded tickets for 275,133 students to attend performing arts events. Requests to hold funds over were received from twenty-two LALCs. Funds are held over for a variety of reasons. For example, a decision to distribute PASS only one cycle per year, difficulty using PASS funds due to a lack of available funding for transportation, or encountering school administrators who are reluctant to take children out of classes for field trips are reasons often cited.

Only two councils, Mount Washington and Tolland, did not apply for any of their funds this year. This represents an increased participation of LALCs as compared to Fiscal Year 1988, when eight councils did not apply.

The success of the PASS Program's outreach is reflected by the continually increasing request for funding. In Spring of 1987 only 28 applications, exceeding funding availability by $5,678, were not able to be funded at 100%, but by the end of fiscal year 1989, 551 applications were funded at at less than 100%, exceeding funding availability by $143,779.

This year, students from across the state attended a broad range of performances, presented at a variety of venues including:

Berkshire:	Children's Theatre of Massachusetts, Jacob's Pillow, New England Puppetry Series;
Central:	First Night Worcester, Greater Milford Ballet Company, Worcester Foothills Theatre;
East:	Boston Symphony Orchestra, Boston Center for the Arts, Dance Umbrella, Huntington Theatre;
North:	Center for the Arts University of Lowell, Merrimack Repertory Theatre, North Shore Music Theatre;
South:	Brockton Community Schools Cultural Program, New Bedford Symphony Orchestra, Zeiterion Theatre.

There are now over three hundred performing artists and cultural organizations participating in PASS. Eligibility includes, but is not limited to, professional performances or presentations of music, dance, and theater. During this past year more formal arrangements were developed to require participating organizations to more clearly agree to their responsibilities.

Guidelines embodying the language and spirit of the legislation creating PASS specify the following:

- 1) Artists/Organizations will sell tickets for their regularly scheduled performances at their standard ticket price or five dollars, whichever is less;
- 2) Performances may not take place in a school during regular school hours;
- 3) In order to ensure that students attending a performance through PASS are consistently provided with appropriate seating, students must be seated in the mid-to-upper price range seats whenever reserved seating is available.

A complete roster of participating artists and organizations in the program was published and distributed in January 1989, followed by an addendum in June 1989. The distribution of this roster and addendum was more than double previous publications. Four thousand copies of both the roster and the addendum were mailed to a comprehensive state-wide list including all local arts lottery councils, school superintendents, principals, high school fine arts departments, and special-needs program administrators.

As the program evolves, analysis and evaluation of the procedures that currently regulate it continues. One area of concern is that, to date, an evaluation of the merit/quality of artists and organizations is not a pre-requisite for inclusion on the roster. The MALC is in the process of developing criteria by which to review artistic standards, in order to ensure that students are consistently offered quality programming.

Also under review is the existing policy of not allowing PASS performances to take place in a school during school hours. While the program was developed to take children out of the school and into a theater, this has become a stumbling block for those communities which do not have easy access to theatres, for example the Cape and the Berkshires.

For such communities, MALC is assessing the feasibility of designating schools that meet specified technical standards as approved PASS sites. This would also help alleviate the burden of finding funding for transportation. In the coming year, as school budgets face a continuing fiscal crisis, monies for this purpose will be less available than ever.

Since its inception in 1986, the Performing Arts Student Series has enabled over 694,184 school children in Kindergarten through twelfth grade, in public, private, parochial schools, and special needs programs, to discover and experience the excitement of the spectrum of the performing arts.

FIELD SERVICES

Liaison Activities

As a decentralized system of state support for the Arts and Humanities, MALC gives great importance to field services for LALCs, whose members are all volunteers. Since 1986, the agency has contracted with four community arts organizations to serve as liaisons between the state and the LALCs providing information and assistance to LALCs through various means such as regional work-shops, special meetings, and personal conferences. Liaisons review locally-approved applications for compliance with state guidelines and statutes and forward recommendations to the MALC.

Liaison agencies as of June 30, 1989 were:

Cambridge Arts Council - serving Eastern/Southern regions.
Groton Center for the Arts - serving Northern region.
Worcester Cultural Commission - serving Central region.
Arts Extension Service - serving Berkshire/Western regions.

Twice each year training workshops for all LALC members are conducted by MALC staff and liaisons. During fiscal year 1989, the MALC offered a total of 60 workshops state-wide. In the fall, 33 workshops were offered and members from 100 different councils attended. For the first time mayors, selectmen, and other local officials were invited to attend and make a brief presentation to LALC members. Meeting sites for Fall 1988 included:

Andover	Erving	Lenox	Shelbourne
Attleborough	Falmouth	Leominster	Shutesbury
Berlin	Groton	Manchester	Somerville
Billerica	Hadley	Medfield	Stoughton
Chelsea	Halifax	Oakham	Southbridge
Chicopee	Haverhill	Phillipston	Southwick
Eastham	Holliston	Plainfield	Wareham
Egremont	Huntington	Sandisfield	Whitinsville
		Wilbraham

During the spring, 27 workshops were offered, with members from some 100 councils attending. Workshops took place in:

Becket	Hubbardston	Northfield	Stow
Buckland	Hyannis	Pittsfield	Sutton
Burlington	Leicester	Plymouth	West Newbury
Easthampton	Malden	Provincetown	Westford
Fall River	Middleton	Salem	Wilbraham
Goshen	Newton	Southborough	Wrentham
Greenfield	North Amherst	Southwick

Topics included review and clarification of the Arts Lottery and PASS program guidelines, reporting procedures for the distribution cycles, conflict-of-interest issues and other subjects. Briefing papers on various matters concerning community arts were available.

Liaisons completed a survey of all LALCs. This provided information about the support which LALCs received from their municipalities, local arts plans, ability to assist applicants, etc. A review of these responses showed the enormous diversity among councils and an on-going need for assistance due to the high rate of membership turn-over.

In response to the need for membership training, liaisons and staff planned an Orientation Handbook to address an entire range of questions and to give instructions for both newly appointed and experienced members alike. It was published in June, 1989.

Liaisons' work involves constant association with the entire cultural community in Massachusetts including such organizations as the Cultural Education Collaborative, the Consortium of Local Arts Agencies of Massachusetts, the Massachusetts Cultural Alliance, and the Massachusetts Council for the Arts & Humanities.

As field personnel, liaisons bring to the MALC a realistic experience of their regions.

Newsletters

The MALC fosters communication among LALCs and the cultural community through its newsletter, "UPDATE" which was published three times - October 1988, February and June 1989. A powerful vehicle for information sharing, the newsletter was distributed to all LALC members, state legislators, and many cultural institutions. Newsletter articles, written by staff, liaisons, and LALC members, covered a broad range of issues relevant to the field.

The October issue highlighted outstanding projects by LALCs in Northbridge, Medfield, and Fitchburg; announced the opening of the MALC gallery; profiled MALC Chair, Walter Frazee, Jr.; gave information to LALCs on how to improve the administration of the distribution cycle, and announced the annual LALC conference.

February's issue had articles on proposed legislation pertaining to MALC; profiled both MALC Vice-Chair, Sybil Sermos and the MALC staff; updated status of PASS; announced several upcoming events including the opening of the "Worcester Winners" exhibit in the MALC gallery, the series of MALC's state-wide workshops, and CLAAM's May 20th Community Arts Conference.

Over the past few years, the MALC had received many requests to share examples of successful arts lottery projects. In response, "THE SAMPLER", a special newsletter, highlighted outstanding projects from across the state, portraying the diversity of disciplines and reflecting a wide range of grant allocations.

Projects from the following LALCs were highlighted: Arlington, Bellingham, Boston, Bourne, Cambridge, Chelmsford, Foxborough, Grafton, Holyoke, Hopkinton, Lexington, Manchester, Plainfield, Provincetown, the Pioneer Valley, Stoneham, and Southampton.

Communications

Local arts lottery councils are as diverse and multifaceted as the communities they serve. This year, the MALC published the Local Arts Lottery Council Handbook, created to instruct and share the experiences of many of these councils.

This publication helps to orient new members to the lottery program and serves as a convenient reference for all members in managing their administrative and grants-making responsibilities. It focuses on key aspects of local arts lottery operations through the presentation of ideas, suggestions, and examples gathered from LALCs and discussions with MALC staff and regional liaisons. The Handbook was designed to complement, and to be used in conjunction with, the official MALC guidelines.

"Dedicated to the tireless efforts of the nearly three thousand local arts lottery council members, without whose energy and ideas this program would not be possible," the Handbook was written and edited by Lucia Foley, Westfield Arts Lottery Council and Dyan Wiley, Western regional liaison at the Arts Extension Service. It was published in cooperation with the Arts Extension Service, University of Massachusetts at Amherst.

Via the newsletter, the handbook, and regional workshops, all integral segments of the communications plan, MALC has been moving closer to a most important long-range goal: assisting LALCs so that they can more effectively foster the agency's mission within their community -- to stimulate and encourage the arts and humanities within cities and towns throughout the Commonwealth.

Study Committees

In fiscal year 1989, two study committees were formed to examine the interpretations of guidelines defining arts and humanities [2.05:(1)], and limitations of aid for public agencies such as public schools and libraries [2.05:(3)]. Composed of members of local arts lottery councils, regional liaisons, and staff, the committees recommended clarifications to the members of MALC.

The following guideline clarifications were issued in June, to provide guidance to LALCs in counseling applicants and in making decisions about proposals at the local level.

ARTS/HUMANITIES, 2.05:(1): The MALC affirmed their confidence in local decision-making but emphasized their commitment to protect the arts lottery program by maintaining minimum standards. In determining the appropriateness of proposals, each LALC is required to examine the documentation of the applicant's artistic or fine-arts education, performing experience, training, and peer review.

In evaluating performers, auditions and/or live or taped previews should be used to determine an artist's versatility, originality, creativity, and rapport with the audience.

Acts such as juggling, magic, circus performing, and acrobatics as stand-alone acts are considered insufficient in arts and humanities content and will not be funded. But if such forms are included in a program, for example New Vaudeville, and IF the overall focus of the program reflects a larger, more artistic framework, then such a program may qualify.

MALC emphasized that the creative and artistic component of the program is the crucial element in determining the appropriateness of any project. Any program which sets new standards for unique and creative expression may be supported if properly documented.

NON-SUBSTITUTION, 2.05:(3) defines the limitations of aid for public agencies such as public schools and libraries. If a public building (e.g. school, library, town hall) is the only arts or performing center in town, or is the only appropriate space for particular art media or organizations, a public agency may be eligible for funding of capital expenses and equipment for the building IF improvements or equipment are used primarily for arts and/or humanities purpose. A match is required.

If the applicant is a non-profit arts or humanities group which regularly uses such a public space for performances, events, exhibits, etc. a match is not required so long as the newly purchased equipment is portable and owned by the applicant. The definition of enrichment programs in public agencies does include support for a professional artist or humanist to work with the agency in enrichment activities, curriculum development, teacher education or after-school clubs. This DOES NOT apply to employees of the public agency who may be professional artists or humanists.

High-quality arts or humanities videos or audio recordings for public libraries may be eligible if they meet current guideline requirements of "new need, one-time expense, and matched one-to-one with other funds." Applicants could choose to request funds for the purpose of attaining a single extensive collection over more than one cycle.

PASS STUDY

In 1988, the budget for the program included a legislative mandate for "a study evaluating the effectiveness of the Performing Arts Student Series." Dr. Helane S. Rosenberg, Ph.D, a nationally renowned scholar in the study of theatre arts for children was hired to fulfill this mandate. She developed a longitudinal study to be conducted over a three-year period to provide a thorough, but accessible, evaluation of the effect of the program on school children.

Dr. Rosenberg plans to complete her comprehensive report during the next year. MALC plans to distribute this report to legislators, educators, professional organizations, and interested individuals.

ADMINISTRATION

The arts lottery program is administered by a staff of five led by an Executive Director. The staff administers all aspects of each grant distribution cycle, keeps and updates LALC membership records, collaborates and assists regional liaisons in providing field services, processes and monitors payments to LALCs.

MALC Staff:

Barbara Garvey, Executive Director
 Michael Nagle, Fiscal Coordinator
 Lisa Hergenrother, ALP Distribution Coordinator and Executive Assistant
 Linda Hiltz, PASS Program Director and Communications Coordinator
 Tom Formicola, Administrative Assistant
 Susan Grider, Administrative Assistant

MALC Liaisons:

 Sylvia Cuomo, Worcester Cultural Commission
 Tricia Wells, Groton Center for the Arts
 Barbara Baker, Cambridge Arts Council

MALC Volunteers and Interns:

Royal Schweiger, Chair, Stoneham Arts Lottery Council
 Mary McCarthy, UMASS/Boston

NOTES OF APPRECIATION:

Cynthia Snelling resigned from the Arts Lottery Council during this year after working with the Council over a period of ten years, from 1979. Her work with the Arts Lottery Council began in the late 70's with the original impetus for a lottery for the arts from Public Action for the Arts and the Senate Special Committee on the Arts. She worked in many capacities during her tenure, culminating in her role as the first coordinator for the PASS Program when it was begun in the fall of 1986. Her expertise and friendly manner were well-known and much appreciated by the MALC and the many people she dealt with.

Marion Martin left the Council in the spring of 1988 after serving the Arts Lottery program for many years. She was a familiar voice to the many volunteers in the field as, among other things, she kept track of the membership of the local and regional councils. She was also responsible for checking and processing application packages.
